GET TO KNOW JILL GARBER

I grew up in a small town in Michigan where I began sewing, designing and making jewelry to sell while still in elementary school. I have been dedicated to creating my own business since I was in my early teens. My first/best job was part time at Georg Jensen on Madison Avenue selling Helen Woodhull's amazing collection jewelry while studying Fashion at Parsons School of Design, in New York. I then moved to Los Angeles where I created ads for the Rolling Stone Magazine (paid in record albums and had to sell for rent money) until I was hired in Visual Merchandising for Saks Fifth Avenue and (later) Bonwit Teller in Beverly Hills. I left those jobs when I was hired by the largest West Coast manufacturer of kitchen, beach and bath towels where I designed the " Bathworks Collection" - embroidered and embellished home decor/textiles until I ultimately launched my own home decor collection brand Jill Garber Design in 1984. I now live and create my collection of jewelry and couture clothing from my farm in Michigan (where I also have my studio) and live happily with my horses, chickens, and ducks who are my lost loyal customers and fans.
